Performance Based Budgeting for State and Local Government Training Course

Introduction

Performance-based budgeting (PBB) is an approach where the government, acting as the steward of public funds, aims to utilize these resources judiciously and transparently. By linking the funds received from taxpayers (input) with the services provided by federal, state, or local governments (output), PBB ensures accountability and efficiency. This method involves setting targets, developing performance budgets to achieve those targets, and evaluating outcomes. PBB quantifies qualitative factors to measure and account for them accurately.
